Bristow Says That to the Wisconsin Man Belongs Credit for Postal Investigation.

REVIEW SCANDALS

Deals With the Abuse That Certain Officials Have Put Up With, Lately.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Joseph L. Bristow, fourth assistant postmaster general, who for the last half year has been head of the investigation of one of the greatest postal scandals in the history of the government, has completed his report to the postmaster general, who, with a brief letter of transmittal, will forward it to President Roosevelt.

These are the main features of the report:

Gives Credit to Payne.
Postmaster General Payne is given the credit for beginning the investigation.

Details of the inquiry into the cases now before the courts are reviewed. Abuses which have grown up under the machinations of the Beavers-Machen ring are related in unmistakable language.

Thorough reorganization of the bureau of which Beavers and Machen had charge is recommended. Abolishing of office of superintendent of free delivery, formerly held by Machen, is recommended.

Administrative acts during the Perry S. Heath tenure of office as first assistant postmaster general are criticized severely, although Heath is not named directly.

Praises Inspectors.
The work of the inspectors who were brought into the postal scandal dragnet is given high praise.

Not one word of commendation for First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne, who in the beginning was largely responsible for the investigation, is contained in the report.

The report criticizes the administration of the Washington city post-office, sustaining a large part of the Tulloch charges. As a result of this postmaster Merrill, it is now understood, will be asked to resign in spite of the personal appeals to the president made by Postmaster General Payne and Charles Emory Smith.

Overlooks Wynne.
The failure to mention First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne in connection with the beginning of the inquiry will be marked by Mr. Wynne's friends, who have not forgotten the prominent part he played during the first few days after the scandal became public, and while he was acting as postmaster general, during which time Mr. Payne also will be noticeable because in conversation Mr. Bristow, it is said, repeatedly remarked that Wynne made it possible that the investigation not only should be made but be made thorough.

Makes Recommendation.
Among the most important recommendations regarding administrative changes will be that looking to the abolishment of the office of general superintendent of free delivery. Mr. Bristow takes the ground that as there are already two superintendents in this division, one of city delivery and the other of rural delivery, each of these can manage his respective bureau without the supervision of a general superintendent.

It is understood that Perry S. Heath, who escaped criticism of a most severe character in Mr. Bristow's report, but there being no cause for taking any legal action it was decided to mention by name any officials or former officials of the department whose doings have not been brought before the grand jury for the purpose of obtaining an indictment.

Reviews Indictments.
The various indictments of persons and out of the departments and all ails leading up to them will be reviewed thoroughly by Mr. Bristow, the evidence and the inspectors' work in each case will be submitted, and of the evidence as was of a confidential nature will not be made public except in certain possible cases, which the president himself will decide.

Text Blood Pressure.
Denver, Colo., Oct. 21.—Twenty-one students of Colorado Springs were taken to the summit of Pike's Peak to determine by the use of the rival machine the difference in blood pressure at the high altitude.

Arrest Alleged Forger.

CANADIAN CRITICISES
ACTIVITY OF AMERICANS

New Brunswick Senator Points Out That Uncle Sam's Possessions May Surround the Dominion.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 21.—Senator Poirier of New Brunswick in the senate attacked the Alaskan boundary decision. The commissioners, he said, virtually, practically, and actually ceded the whole of the coast in dispute to the United States. That was no surprise. It could have been anticipated, and likely it is the best thing that could have been done. An arrangement is often better than a successful lawsuit.

"I find," he said, "no fault with the tribunal; we can afford for the sake of peace and harmony with our neighbors to give up a third slice of our territory, but I think it is time we called a halt and look forward to see how many other slices we may be called on to part with and see if we cannot avert the primary dismemberment of the dominion."

"Our friends to the south are now to the west of us and to the northwest of us. Shall we wait until we are encircled by them? Imminent dangers are staring us in the face. The next arbitration may be concerning Hudson bay. Supposing at that time Greenland is in the possession of the United States. The United States is now putting forward claims for Greenland. What would the result be in an arbitration tribunal as to part of Hudson bay?"

"The senate should direct the attention of the government to this matter, and it would be a mistake for Canada to allow the United States to get possession, say, of the north pole."

He proceeded to refer to the expeditions which the United States sent in search of the pole, and said that Canada should not wait till the United States had scooped in the whole arctic regions and then encircle Canada on all sides, south, west, northwest, and north. There was Newfoundland to the east, and an effort was made to get it annexed to the United States.

"The future independence of our country," added the senator, "may depend on this question."

Richmond, N. C., Oct. 21.—A newspaper in this state whose editor is a Presbyterian minister says editorially that in view of the acquittal of Tillman and Heywood there should be a return to the duel and that this is now the only way to settle difficulties. Many other papers in the state agree with this viewpoint. One of the leading papers in the state makes the editorial declaration that the criminal courts seem to be for the sole purpose of sending petty criminals to work on roads and giving a clean bill of health to those charged with higher crimes.

NURSES STRUGGLE WITH MAD WOMAN AT HOSPITAL

Makes Vain Attempt to Prevent Hysterical Patient From Jumping From Fourth Story Window.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 21.—Three female nurses and a woman physician, assisted by a patient, proved themselves heroes at the Woman's hospital, Twenty-second street and North College avenue, in a vain attempt to prevent a hysterical patient from leaping from the fourth story window to the ground.

For fully five minutes the nurses held the woman by the shoulders and arms, she dangling outside the window. Their strength became exhausted, and so desperately did the patient struggle that to save themselves the plucky young women inside the window were compelled to let her drop to the ground. She sustained injuries that it is feared may result fatally.

The victim was Elizabeth McGowan, 35 years old, of 2431 Carpenter street. She was admitted to the hospital suffering from nervousness and insomnia.

While the struggle was going on at the window, a nurse and a woman physician hurried outside and stretched a blanket in the hope of breaking the woman's fall. When the body came hurtling down it just missed the edge of the blanket.

Ex-Senator Mason's Gold Mining Plans in Klondike Fail.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 21.—Lack of water this summer prevented the Columbia Hydraulic company of Chicago, organized by ex-Senator Mason, from profitably operating its big gold mining plant in the Atlin district of British Columbia. The managers of the company expect to make a large crop, which they say was justified by the richness of the ground. The shortage of water affected the Klondike, Forty Mile and other districts as well as the Atlin properties. Lawrence Dewitt, manager of the property, will go to Chicago in December to attend the annual meeting and outline the prospects of profits next year. The company was organized and capital raised by ex-Senator William E. Mason on the recommendation of a practical miner, who estimated the company's claim would produce millions.

Sexagenarian of Athens, Ind., Is Half Hanged During Threshing.

While Moore was being whipped his wife and son remained peacefully in bed and made no attempt to protect him. There were twelve men in the gang, masked with pillowslips. They broke open the door of the bedroom, seized Moore and threw him on the floor. Two men held his hands while another bound him. He was then taken to the barn and a rope placed around his neck was thrown over a cross bar. He was pulled up until his toes barely touched the ground and each man took a turn in whipping him with buggy whips or hickory switches.

DAGO AWAITS
DEATH CALMLY

He Talks Freely of the Crime He Committed, and Why He Did It.

USED AN AX WELL

Says That the Mafia Had Ordained the Death of His Victim Long Ago.

(Special By Scripps-McLae.)

Geneva, Ill., Oct. 21.—Cheerfully awaiting death, Michel Angelo Filippisse chats with the death watch pacing in front of his cell, and tells visitors a wonderful story of the crime for which he is to hang. The condemned man declares he was not the assassin of Chief of Police Hennessy in New Orleans a decade ago, and that he murdered Nicholas Tomasso at Aurora a few months ago because he had disobeyed the Mafia and refused to assist in the former crime.

Filippisse is condemned to hang on Friday. The Governor is expected to grant a reprieve. There is powerful influence being brought on the Governor by Chicago Italians to have the sentence of their fellow countryman and society member commuted to life imprisonment.

Condemned Man Confesses.

Filippisse, who was tried and convicted under the name of Antonio Roman, made a written confession. Filippisse says he was born at Castagnole, Italy, in 1855, that his mother and sister now live in Naples, a brother lives in Connecticut, and his wife and child are in Pittsburg.

The trouble between him and Tomasso started in Italy, when the Mafia delegated Tomasso to come to America to assist in the assassination of Hennessy. Tomasso shirked the duty, and Filippisse took his place. After the murder he escaped the mob at New Orleans and returned to Italy. Tomasso, for his cowardice, was expelled from the Mafia, and with his brother came to America.

Reason for Murder.

When Filippisse came to America the brothers discovered him in New York, beat and robbed him and had him arrested.

The two old-time enemies were working together at Aurora on the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern road when Tomasso was murdered. Filippisse says Tomasso attempted to secure his discharge. He also was imposed upon continually by the other workmen in the gang led by Tomasso. One night he was compelled to steal coal for their fire.

Strikes Victim With Ax.

Returning to his bunk, he found Tomasso alone in the car. An ax was lying near the stove. Filippisse says the memory of Tomasso's early disloyalty rushed over him, and, seizing the weapon, he struck his oppressor three times and fled.

Filippisse names as fellow members of Italian societies Frank Granata, 339 Desplaines street; Charles Granata, city hall, and Felix Labori, all of Chicago.

The execution will take place in the open air. A stockade will surround the scaffold. It will be the second execution in the county, the other one taking place in 1854.

The state produced one witness, who swore that he had seen Cramer on Sept. 4 in possession of a black bass "under ten inches in length." The defendant testified that he had not captured a game fish this year, except on Sept. 27, and that that one was twelve and one-half inches long. He produced two witnesses, who swore that they had been with him on Sept. 4 and that he had caught nothing but two goggle eyes and a sunfish. The court held that the state's evidence was the strongest, and assessed a fine of 1 cent and costs.

ROCK

Rock, Oct. 15.—A corn husker owned by J. R. McDole, his son Vern McDole, and a M. Hollenbeck was operated on the Burr W. Tolles' farm just south of the Institute for the Blind, one day last week, and all who saw the machine at work are loud in its praise. It promises to be a great invention for it fills a long felt want. Corn harvesters and corn shredders have long been in use but it remains for these gentlemen to place a practical corn husker on the market.

This machine is operated by one man and drawn through the field with three horses and husks the standing corn as fast as the machine is drawn, taking one row at a time. That is to say, it will husk one acre per hour, and more than that, after removing the husks and silks, places the husked corn in a wagon at the side. The machine gives perfect satisfaction to the builders and to others who saw it at work. Considering that the corn was not matured it was surprising to see the corn pass through the machine. In about two weeks or so as soon as the corn is in a condition for cribbing, the gentlemen will be at work with the machine, demonstrating its worth to people who are interested in corn huskers.

The home of Mr. McDole and son is in Aurora, Ill., while Mr. Hollenbeck resides in Janesville. As they have spent years of hard work and a large amount of money to perfect the machine, it is hoped that the very best of success will crown their efforts.

DIPLOMACY

One more victory has been accorded to the shirt sleeve diplomacy of the American diplomats. This time the opposing side was composed of the brainiest men that England or Canada could produce. Taking it all in all it is not surprising that American diplomats are forging to the front. Behind the members of the commission at London was a nation of men and women, a nation such as the world has never looked upon before in its history. Combined into one great conglomerate mass are the men from all the countries of Europe, Asia and North and South America. Descendants of the old time Puritans, of the bleak New England coast, of the cavaliers of Virginia and the Carolinas, of the sturdy Scotch-Irish who crossed the mountains to the west, of the Dutch of Pennsylvania, the Quakers of Philadelphia, of the Huguenots of Georgia and Alabama, the French of New Orleans, the Spanish of New Mexico and California. The Swedes and Norwegians of the great northwest, all cemented into one bond of fellowship by the stars and stripes that flies above us all. In the early days of our nation men like John Jay, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, the two Adams, were the beginning of our diplomatic corps of today. Then came Monroe and his famous doctrine, blunt "Old Hickory," Henry Clay, Daniel Webster, mighty men at Washington when mighty men were needed. Lincoln, the man of the hour, James G. Blaine and John Hay. It is not one bound from insignificance to prominence, but the steady growth of a century. Today America is looked to by the world at large. Today we are a nation that can turn the destinies of peace and war by a simple nod of our heads. From the pigmy of a century ago we are today a world power and it is to our diplomats that we owe this place. The recent victory marks a new epoch in our history. It is the passing away of armed arbitration by the more subtle power of the brain. Today we are joined more closely, allied more firmly to England than that great day in July 1776 when our continental fathers in Philadelphia declared us a free and independent people.

MISTER DOWIE

The Dowie followers who were compelled to contribute to the full extent of their resources to pay for the prophet's invasion of New York, doubtless will entertain rather mixed feelings upon learning that Mrs. Dowie was robbed of a diamond and pearl brooch, worth $1,500, soon after she reached New York. Possibly some of them sold less valuable trinkets in order to contribute their mite.

CANADA GREEDY

In view of the fact that Canada has considerable land that is not in immediate danger of being put to practical use, it is difficult to understand why the Lady of the Snows should have become so excited over the prospect of not securing possession of a larger strip of Alaska.

THAT TOY PISTOL

It may appear odd to some people that an agitation for the suppression of the sale of toy pistols, used almost exclusively on the Fourth of July, should begin now, but it must be remembered that it takes more time to kill off the toy pistol practice than the toy pistol requires to lay low the small boy.

CHAMBER OF HORRORS

It would not seem probable that Bryan can really realize just what a state he has fallen into when a goal and true man refuses to perjure himself for his gratification.

It would look as though Russia and Japan were sort of maneuvering so as to have their little fight come off down along Korea, just to bother people with the unpronounceable names.

PRESS COMMENT

Marquette Eagle-Star: So far this season the surgeons have not had their annual amount of business in Marquette, the real good players not having played football yet.

Milwaukee News: Uncle "Hod" Taylor was taken for a reporter in Washington the other day, but as he had just drawn his salary he had no trouble in proving that it wasn't so.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The Democrats are still talking Neal Brown for governor if they name him and the republicans call John H. Stout, we will have a little battle worthy of our steel and a campaign that will be to the everlasting credit of Wisconsin.

Madison Journal: Governor La Follette's game warden is writing letters urging the county clerks to market each as many hunting licenses as possible. O, this weak commercial age—this putting the dollar before the rabbit!

Appleton Post: Those experts in physical geography who have attributed the diminishing and light rainfalls of previous seasons to the clearing up of the country will have to revise their theory, as probably more rain has been precipitated this year throughout the United States than ever before.

Chippewa Herald: A printer of La Crosse has gone crazy over a love affair, the matter probably affecting his "engine" too strongly to allow an untroubled mind. And then, as printers usually do when they go to bugland, he saw money for the first time in his life, and declared that Christ had appointed him to share Rockefeller's millions.

Milwaukee Sentinel: With few exceptions it will be found that the figures presented by Governor La Follette either do not apply to trade of the section to which they are presented, or they are made up of rates on articles selected here and there with such discriminating acuteness that, while they appear to tell a truthful story they are, like all half truths, the most dangerous of deceptions.

Neenah Times: It may seem somewhat queer to outsiders, but it is a fact that with a water way from Neenah to Green Bay that has cost $3,000,000 and two big lines of railway along the same line, that a dray is also employed to good advantage in conveying merchandise from Appleton, Menasha and Neenah to Oshkosh, and always with full loads on return trips. This seems somewhat tough on the canal and railways.

Czar Writes a Poem.

DRIVEN INSANE BY EMERY DUST

EVARD PUFAHL ATTEMPTED SUICIDE YESTERDAY.

TRIED TO CUT HIS THROAT

Was Captured at Golf Grounds and Taken to Jail—Three Men With Him All Night.

Evard Pufahl, a grinder, who has been employed at the Janesville Machine Co.'s works, for twelve years past, became violently insane yesterday and attempted to take his life. He had not been feeling well for some time and after consulting a physician it was found that his disorder was due to emery dust that had accumulated in his lungs. He was advised to lay off a few days and did so.

Tries to Cut Throat

Yesterday afternoon he went to the home of his brother, who takes care of the golf links, and told his brother's wife that he had lost all of his property, the deeds having become worthless, and must die. He whipped out his jack knife and attempted to cut his throat. The woman screamed and her husband came running to see what the matter was. He seized Pufahl and held him down on the floor while his wife ran to secure the aid of neighbors.

Struggle in the Jail

The man was loaded into the little carry-all used to take golfers to and from the grounds, and taken to the county jail. He was left alone with the turnkey, Roy Graves, for a time and immediately made a second attempt to take his life. A terrible struggle ensued but the man was finally overpowered.

Butted Head Against Wall

Three men stood with him in his cell all night. Whenever they relaxed their vigilance and let go of him, as happened several times during the night, he would break away and attempt to crash his skull against the walls. Pufahl was examined this morning by Drs. Edden and Sutherland and committed to Mendota. He was taken there by Turnkey Graves this morning. The man has a wife and seven children. His home is at 254 Locust street and he is in comfortable circumstances, financially.

BIG FARM SOLD FOR GOOD PRICE

Town of Bradford Real Estate Bought by a Jefferson County Man.

James R. Lamb of this city has sold his farm in the town of Bradford to William Yandry of Cold-spring, Jefferson county, the purchase price being $33,000. The estate is made up of 46 acres located nine miles east of Janesville near the village of Emerald Grove. Yandry, who is a prosperous Jefferson county farmer, intends to make one of the best stock farms in this part of the state of it. The property in its present condition is improved and up to date, but many changes and alterations will be made by the new owner. Part of the purchase price includes a farm belonging to the purchaser in Jefferson county.

WITH LINK Gossip of Interest AND PIN. Men.

North-Western Road
Charles Swan, a nephew of I. N. Dunwiddle, met with a serious accident on the Thompson farm near Fairfield, last night. He was kicked by a horse and one of his hips was injured and the bone of one of his legs splintered. Mr. Dunwiddle went to Fairfield last night.

The battered remains of a once-proud Plymouth Rock rooster were found in one of the trucks of Engineer Manning's locomotive when it pulled into the roundhouse last night. The rooster was hastily stowed away in another engineer's toolbox and caused some lively arguments this morning.

Engineer Gridley and Fireman Eattiger went to Chicago on business today.

Carpenter George Rood has completed the work of repairing the sandhouse at Harvard and returned to Janesville.

Fireman William Tallman went to Koshkonong for a week's visit today. Fireman Dawson is relieving him.

Engineer G. Goodley is relieving Engineer A. Shaker on the Burlington run.

BOXES NOT FOR CIRCULARS

Receptacles for Rural Delivery Must Not Be Misused.

It is the opinion of many farmers who receive their letters by rural delivery that the boxes should not be used as receptacles for advertising hand bills. Men who ride around the county distributing these bills cause much annoyance to residents by raising the letter signal when there is no occasion for it and thus causing useless work.

NIGHT HUNTING IS NOT ALLOWED

Game Wardens Are Having a Hard Time with Hunters This Year.

The fish and game wardens of the state are having difficulty in enforcing that part of the game laws which prohibits shooting of water fowl in the night time. Few of the hunters seem to know that "dark" shooting is against the law, and all of them profess to be ignorant of this provision. The law is section 455a of the statutes of 1898, and is as follows:

"Any person who shall pursue, catch, take or kill any wild duck, wild goose, brant or other aquatic fowl between sun set and the following sunrise shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100 or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding 60 days."

On the shores of Madison lakes Deputy Warden A. W. Gratz was first instructed to warn all violators of this law. He is now instructed to make arrests whenever he catches hunters in the act of violating the law.

BAD WEATHER FOR SCORES

At the Broadhead Shoot—Janesville Men See Birds Fly—Many Present.

The Janesville Shooting club will resume the bi-weekly shoots at the close of the duck season and it is expected that the opening meet will be held on Thanksgiving day, or shortly after that date. The members are too busy at present out after the real thing. Many true sportsmen were present from Fort Atkinson, Chicago, Whitewater, Burlington, Monroe, South Wayne, Monticello, Albany, and other towns, at the season's shoot of the Southern Wisconsin Trap Shooters' League recently held at Broadhead. The regular meet came to a close last Friday and two well known Janesville men were present. On Friday there were five events at targets in the morning and three events at pigeons in the afternoon. The team race was taken by Dodge and Fritz of Monroe. Fred Root of Albany won the league target trophy and the L. C. Smith badge was captured by Dodge. This is the third time he has won the prize on a perfect score so now will own the trophy. The shoot for the league live bird trophy resulted in a tie between Kirkpatrick of Broadhead and Prisk of Monticello. The trial for the tie was made and Kirkpatrick made the greatest score. The heavy wind blowing at the time made good scores almost impossible, and the birds were the fastest lot yet trapped. A shoot is being arranged by the Albany men and in this event pigeons will be used entirely. The officers of the Southern Wisconsin Trap Shooters' League are: Dr. W. L. Stephenson of Broadhead, president; E. W. Voss, South Wayne, vice president; Lewis Dodge of Monroe, secretary, and H. E. Orton of Burlington, treasurer.

MATT BITTSON IS DRESSED IN RED

AND MIXES MORTAR AT WAUPUN STATE PRISON.

SHERIFF APPLEBY'S VISIT

Went With His Wife Through Institution Yesterday—Saw Much of Interest.

Sheriff and Mrs. George Appleby spent the day yesterday visiting the state prison at Waupun. They were shown through the institution by the warden and saw several of the prisoners sent from Janesville who are working out their sentences there.

Bittson Dressed in Red
One of the first familiar figures they encountered was Matt Bittson, the man who murdered his wife and her sister and burned up the house they were living in. Bittson, it will be remembered, tried to escape a few weeks ago and in consequence is wearing a suit of bright red which makes him the laughing stock of his fellows. He was engaged in mixing mortar for a power plant structure that is being installed.

Louis Smith Whitewashes
Louis Smith, the colored man who was sent there for eighteen months, was another familiar figure. He was wearing a broad brimmed hat and was engaged in white-washing one of the buildings. Richard James Lester, the highwayman, and others were also seen.

Montgomery Brought In
While Mr. and Mrs. Appleby were at the jail, Montgomery, who was convicted of a terrible murder at Sparta a short time ago, was brought in by the sheriff of Monroe county. Montgomery, it will be remembered, claimed that his wife fell out of the buggy and broke her neck, whereas it was later discovered that witnesses had seen him strike and kill her.

Twelve Women in Prison
There are twelve women in the state prison and Mrs. Appleby was allowed to visit their department. Seven of these are serving life sentences.

HUNTERS BALKED BY HIGH WATER

An Authority Says Teal and Mallards Are Plentiful—Duck Shooting Is Difficult.

Hunting in the vicinity of the lakes is reported to be quite good this fall although prospects for shooting are still better for the close of October.

Numerous hunters are going into the country daily and return with much game. F. F. Pierson who is one of best authorities on the subject, says that teal and mallards are more plentiful and have come earlier this year than for many seasons which is ascribed to the high water caused by the heavy and continuous rains during the summer. Duck shooting is poor this year and again the cause is ascribed to the heavy rains, and then, in the Gopher state, it has been too wet to go out after game of that class.

Local hunters complain of a shortage of snipe. This is attributed to the fact that the dried up ponds have become lakes full of vegetation of which ducks are fond, and instead of bunching in their usual haunts, are dispersed in every direction and hunters are having the hardest kind of work to get access to them says the Madison Democrat. The usual duck passes are not much good this year. The water is too deep for the ducks to feed, or else there is so much of it to operate as in past years. The snipe, however, are satisfied that they are safer from the shot gun than they have been for several years.

A large number of squirrels were secured last Sunday and rabbits are beginning to be hunted by the man with the gun. A few fine specimens of the family are being brought into the city. Many more hunters are expected to leave by the end of the month.

Imports From Sheffield.
American imports from Sheffield, England, last year, were worth $2,212,000, an increase of $115,000 over the year previous, but only $811,000 of this was for manufactured goods, the bulk being steel sheets, bars and plates.

MEN'S LEAGUE MET LAST NIGHT

Well Known Men Give Excellent Talks on Timely Subjects.

The Men's League of the Presbyterian church held their first fall session last evening in the parlors of the church. An excellent program was given and several well known men spoke on subjects of interest to the league. "Evangelistic Movements and Their Present Day Relations" were described by Arthur Fisher and his talk was of unusual interest at this time. Charles Reeder spoke on the Moody evangelistic work and held the attention of all during his address which showed a careful study of the subject. "The Whitefield Movement" was described by Clarence Guthrie in a well prepared talk. Hon. A. A. Jackson gave an able address on the Charles Puncy movement and John Jones told of the Hilderwolf gatherings which were held in the Congregational church in this city. There was a good attendance at the meeting and the discussion following the program was of much interest.

Lester Has Understudies: Two intoxicated men entered Morse & Flynn's restaurant near the Grand Hotel at one o'clock this morning and demanded of Arthur Connors, the clerk, sixty cents worth of food for nothing. The clerk called in Michael Connors, a hackman, and the two rowdies were ejected without further ceremony.

Patsy Griffin Again: "Patsy" Griffin was again found in a state of beastly intoxication last night and taken to the lock-up.

JANESVILLE IS A CARELESS CITY

STREET CARS OUT OF SERVICE LAST NIGHT.

THE ARMATURE WAS DISABLED

Stopped After the Show Was Over—Will Be Repaired by Tomorrow.

Janesville is without street cars. Shortly after the show was over last evening, the armature at the main power house became disabled and since that time not a street car wheel has turned in the city and it is not likely that this method of transit will be available to citizens until another forty-eight hours has passed.

A Dead Town
The power City is a dead town. Instead of the busy clang and whir of the horseless wonders, speeding through the crowded thoroughfares and vieling with the red devils in "getting there" an ominous silence hangs over the pavements, broken only by the pawing of steeds and the ding doing of the bakers' wagons.

Armature Burned Out
It is believed that the breakdown was caused by the endeavor of the over loaded coaches to transfer the theategoers to their homes, as the armature was burned out at that time. The work of repair is going rapidly forward and by tomorrow the hum of the trolleys will again be waited on the October air.

Will Have to Walk
Until the machinery is once more in working order, the busy factory workers must walk to the scene of their labors. And the man who has to catch a train must take to the sidewalk or get a cab.

Contractor C. H. Messer has the job of repairing the armature and it will be several days before the dynamo will be in service again. In the meanwhile arrangements have been made with the Interurban people so that by tomorrow the city cars will be run with power from their wires.

SYNOPSIS.

PART I.—Three rogues, Hayle, Kitwater and Codd, meet at Singapore. Latter two have learned of existence of hidden treasure at Senkeng-Wat, old Chinese ruin. Hayle only half believes account, but nevertheless agrees to join in search.

PART II.—Reaching Senkeng-Wat, the men make their way through the ancient streets and toward the once splendid palace. Toward dusk after a most tedious search they come upon secret entrance to underground vaults, in which are discovered great quantities of bar gold and uncut rubies and sapphires. Hayle fills both hands with gems and the men make their way outside again. On reaching camp they find their two Chinese servants slain and horribly mutilated in Chinese fashion. During the night Hayle secures treasure and steals away into the jungle.

PART III.—Utterly exhausted and unconscious, Hayle is found by English officer near frontier station of Nampoung. As soon as able he leaves for Hongkong and thence to England.

PART IV.—Two months later another officer at Nampoung, while out on a hunt comes across Kitwater and Codd. They explain to him their story and who had fallen into hands of Chinese who had put out his own eyes and pulled out Codd's tongue. After recovering somewhat from effects of his tortures they set out in pursuit of Hayle.

CHAPTER I.—George Fairfax relates how he became a detective in Australia and finally came to open an office in London.

CHAPTER II.—Kitwater and Codd try to lure Fairfax's services. They represent themselves as missionaries returned from China where a rich native patron turned over to them on his death a fortune which was stolen by a guest (Hayle) at the mission. Fairfax almost concludes not to take case.

CHAPTER III.—Miss Kitwater calls on Fairfax in behalf of her uncle and sends in persting him to take up the work. Later in the day a stranger, who calls himself Edward Dayley, of the Santa Cruz Mining company, seeks to induce Fairfax to go to Argentina to shadow mine manager who is suspected of embezzlement. Detective replies he now has case on which will engage him for some time, but will go to Argentina where they are to meet in the principal detective goes in their place to keep appointment. He conceals himself and is much surprised to see Mr. Dayley approach.

CHAPTER IV.—One evening Fairfax finds himself followed by two ruffians, but manages to elude them. Suspecting they will repeat performance he goes forth the next night, but with one of his most powerful men but a little behind. Finding that he is indeed followed, Fairfax turns into a dark street and turns about and confronts ruffians who confess they have been hired to brain him. Finding where they were to meet their principal, detective goes in their place to keep appointment. He conceals himself and is much surprised to see Mr. Dayley approach.

CHAPTER V.—From the managing director of the Santa Cruz Mining company, Fairfax learns there is no Dayley in their employ. The director, however, remembers a former clerk who answers to the description given. He sends the detective to find him. That same day by accident Fairfax almost comes upon Hayle, but the latter escapes into a cab. Fairfax follows in close pursuit. After a long chase the forward cab comes to a stop, but it is empty.

CHAPTER VI.—After many persistent inquiries Fairfax locates Hayle in Foxwell's hotel, but misses finding him in only a few minutes. Subordinate detectives are located at the various stations, and one of them, Dickson, manages to trace Hayle to Paris.

CHAPTER VII.—Fairfax takes advantage of necessary delay on Sunday at the Kitwater home, and becomes very much impressed with the charms of Miss Kitwater. He learns that it is she upon whom Kitwater is drawing for funds for the pursuit of Hayle.

CHAPTER VIII.—In Paris Fairfax enlists cooperation of Legation, the famous French detective, through whose aid he discovers where the treasure is hidden. Much to the surprise of Fairfax Hayle presents himself.

Among other things they were remarkable for the simplicity of their furniture, and also for the fact that in the sitting-room there was nothing to reveal the occupation of their owner. His clever old servant, Susanne, of whom I was said she would, did she but choose, make as clever a detective as her master (she had served him for more than 40 years), brought us coffee so quickly that it would almost seem as if she had been aware that we should reach the house at that particular moment. "We have plenty of time to spare," said my host. "In the meantime it will be necessary for us to find out what they are doing. If you will wait I will dispatch a messenger, who will procure us the information."

He wrote something on a half-sheet of note-paper, rang the bell, and handed it to Susanne.

"Give that to Leon," he said, "and tell him to be off with it at once."

The woman disappeared, and when she had gone we resumed our conversation. Had he not had the good fortune to be such a great success in his own profession, what an admirable actor the man would have made! His power of facial contortion was extraordinary, and I believe that on demand he could have imitated almost any face that struck his fancy. "And now with regard to our little excursion," he said. "What would you like to be?" As you are aware,

I can offer you a varied selection. Will you be a workman, a peddler, an elderly gentleman from the provinces, or a street beggar?"

"I think the elderly gentleman from the provinces would suit me best," I answered, "while it will not necessitate a change of dress."

"Very good, then, so it shall be," he replied. "We'll be a couple of elderly gentlemen in Paris for the first time. Let me conduct you to my dressing-room, where you will find all that is necessary for your make-up."

He thereupon showed me to a room leading out of that in which we had hitherto been sitting. It was very small, and lighted by means of a skylight. Indeed, it was that very small, so he always declared, that induced him to take the flat.

"If this room looked out over the back, or front, it would have been necessary for me either to have curtains, which I abominate, or to run the risk of being observed, which would have been far worse," he remarked to me once. "Needless to say there are times when I find it most necessary that my preparations should not be suspected."

Taken altogether, it was a room that had a strange fascination for me. I had been in it many times before, but was always able to discover something new in it. It was a conglomeration of euphoards and shelves. A large variety of costumes hung upon the pegs in the walls, ranging from soldier's uniforms to beggar's rags. There were wigs of all sorts and descriptions on blocks, pads of every possible order and for every part of the body, humps for hunchbacks, wooden legs, boots ranging from the patent leather of the dandy to the toeless foot-covering of the beggar. There were hats in abundance, from the spotless silk to the most miserable head coverings, some of which looked as if they had been picked up from the rubbish-heap. There were peddlers' trays fitted with all and every sort of ware, a faro-table, a placard setting forth the fact that the renowned Prof. Somebody or Other was a most remarkable phrenologist and worthy of a visit. In fact there was no saying what there was not there. Everything that was calculated to be useful to him in his profession was to be found in the room.

For my own part I am not fond of disguises. Indeed on only two or three occasions, during the whole course of my professional career, have I found it necessary to conceal my identity. But to this wily little Frenchman disguise was, as often as not, a common occurrence. Half an hour later, two respectable elderly gentlemen, looking more like professors from some eminent Lycee than detectives, left the house and proceeded in the direction of the Folly theater. The performance was almost at an end, when we reached it, and we mingled with the crowd who had assembled to watch the audience come out. The inquiries we had made proved to be correct, and it was not very long before I saw the man I wanted emerge, accompanied by a female, who could be no other than Mme. Beaumais. Hayle was in immaculate evening dress, and, as I could not but admit, presented a handsome figure to the world. A neat little brougham drew up beside the pavement in its turn, and into this they stepped. Then the door was closed upon them, and the carriage drove away.

"That's my man," I said to my companion, as we watched it pass out of sight. "To-morrow morning I shall pay him a little visit. I think you were quite right in what you said about the money. That woman must have made a fairly big hole in it already."

"You may be quite sure of that," he answered. "When she has finished with him there will not be much left for anybody else."

"And now to get these things off and then home to bed. To-morrow will in all probability prove an exciting day."

I accompanied him to his room and removed the disguise which had enabled me to see Hayle without his being aware of my identity, and then, bidding my friend good night, returned to my abode. Before I went to bed, however, I sat down and wrote a report of my doings for Miss Kitwater. Little as I had to tell, the writing of this letter gave me considerable pleasure. I could imagine it coming like a breath from another world to that quiet house at Bishopstowe. I pictured the girl's face as she read it, and the strained attention of the two men, who, needless to say, would hang on every word. When I had finished I went to bed, to dream that Gideon Hayle and I were swimming a race in the Seine for five gigantic rubies which were to be presented to the winner by Miss Kitwater.

Next morning I arose early, went for a stroll along the boulevards, and returned to breakfast at eight o'clock. In the matter of my breakfasts in Paris, I am essentially English. I must begin the day with a good meal, or I am fit for nothing. On this particular occasion I sat down on the best terms with myself and the world in general. I made an excellent meal, did the best I could with the morning paper, but my French is certainly not above reproach, and then wondered when I should set out to interview the man whose flight from England had proved the reason of my visiting Paris. Then the door opened and the concierge entered with the words: "A gentleman to see monsieur!"

Next moment, to my overwhelming surprise, no less a person than Gideon Hayle entered the room.

CHAPTER IX.

At the moment that I saw Hayle enter my room, you might, as the saying goes, have knocked me down with a feather. Of all that could possibly have happened, this was surely the most unexpected! The man had endeavored to get me out of his way in London, he had played all sorts of tricks upon me in order to put me off the scent, he had bolted from England because he knew I was searching for him, yet here he was deliberately seeking me out, and of his own free will putting his head into the lion's mouth. It was as astonishing as it was inexplicable.

"Good morning, Mr. Fairfax," he said, bowing most politely to me as he spoke. "I hope you will forgive this early call. I only discovered your address an hour ago, and, as I did not wish to run the risk of losing you, I came on at once."

"You appeared to be fairly desirous of doing so last week," I said. "What has occurred to make you change your mind so suddenly?"

"A variety of circumstances have conspired to bring such a result about," he answered. "I have been thinking the matter over, and not being able to determine the benefit of this hole-and-corner sort of game, I have made up my mind to settle it once and for all."

"I am glad you have come to that way of thinking," I said. "It will save us both an infinity of trouble. You understand, of course, that I represent Messrs. Kitwater and Codd."

"I am well aware of it," he replied, "and in common fairness to myself, I can only say that I am sorry to hear it."

"May I ask why you are sorry?" "Because you have the honor to represent the biggest pair of scoundrels unhung," he answered. "And in saying this I pledge you my word that I am by no means overstepping the mark. I have known them both for a great many years, and can, therefore, speak from experience."

Before going further with him I was desirous of convincing myself upon the point. "You knew them, then, when they were missionaries in China, I suppose?"

"That's the first time I have ever heard what they were," he replied. "Kitwater a missionary! You must forgive my laughing, but the idea is too ludicrous. I'll admit he's done a considerable amount of converting, but it has been converting other people's money into his own pockets."

He laughed at his own bad joke, and almost instantly grew serious once more. He was quite at his ease, and, though he must have known that I was familiar with the story, or supposed story, of his villainy, seemed in no way ashamed.

"Now, Mr. Fairfax," he went on, "I know that you are surprised to see me this morning, but I don't think you will be when we have had a little talk together. First and foremost, you have been told the story of the stones I possess?"

"I have heard Mr. Kitwater's version of it," I answered, cautiously. "I know that you robbed my clients of them and then disappeared."

"I did not rob them of the stones," he said, not in the least offended by the bluntness of my speech. "It is plain that you do not know how we obtained them. Perhaps it's as well that you should not, for there's more behind, and you'd go and get them. No! We obtained them honestly enough at a certain place, and I was appointed to carry them. For this reason I secured them in a belt about my waist. That night the Chinese came down upon us and made us prisoners. They murdered our two native servants, blinded Kitwater, and cut out Codd's tongue. I alone managed to effect my escape. Leaving my two companions for dead, I managed to get away into the jungle. Good heavens! man, you can't imagine what I suffered after that."

I looked at him and saw that his face had grown pale at the mere recollection of his experiences.

Chas. F. Kolich Had Nervous Indigestion.

1428 Eighth Street, St. Louis, Mo., August 26, 1903. Mr. Kolich says: "I have no appetite; food did not taste good, and my stomach was full of gas continually. My indigestion became so bad my stomach refused the plainest food. I became thin, nervous and gloomy. By advice of a very good physician I took Paine's Celery Compound. It did me a world of good. My digestion has never been so good in my life as it is today. Since using Paine's Celery Compound I have learned of hundreds of others who have used it for the same trouble with splendid results."

Women's Headaches

512 1-2 Congress Street, PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

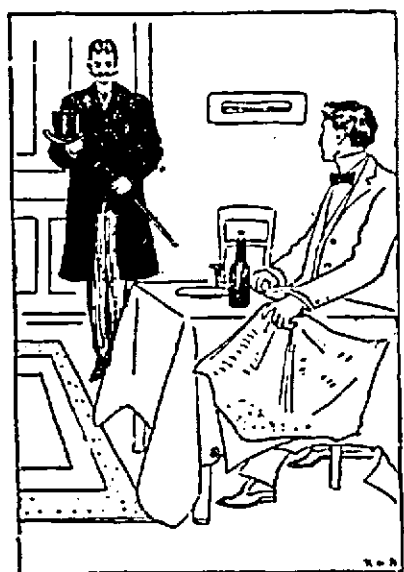

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pain would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain.

Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Snow
Treasurer, Portland Economic League.

Headaches are the danger signals of coming disease. Both men and women suffer headaches, but periodic headache falls only to the lot of women and is the unerring sign of irregular menstruation and bearing down pains. Completely prostrated by nine months of suppressed menses, blinded by headaches and racked with pain, Mrs. Snow was made a strong and healthy woman again. Remember with Wine of Cardui no case is hopeless because this great remedy cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases and never fails to benefit a case of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, try Wine of Cardui, and try it now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui today. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

TWENTY-ONE DIE IN THE PACIFIC

Steamer South Portland Is Wrecked on Reef at Cape Blanco.

ACCIDENT DUE TO DENSE FOG

Eleven Persons Are Lost by the Capsizing of a Lifeboat That Contained Eighteen Souls, Only Seven Being Able to Re-enter the Craft.

Marshfield, Ore., Oct. 21.—In a dense fog the steamer South Portland was wrecked on Cape Blanco reef. Of the thirty-nine persons on board only eighteen succeeded in reaching the shore. It is almost certain that the others were drowned.

The vessel carried a crew of twenty-five and fourteen passengers. Of these the following have reached shore:

James McIntyre, captain; John Reil-mer, a sailor of San Francisco; Emanuel Pasonimla, chief cook; William
L. Wilson, Jr., Baltimore; L. Baker, Alameda, Cal.; Guy Bent, a boy of 12 years, Nova Scotia; Al Bailey, North Dakota, passenger; Charles Bruce, first officer; James Ward, chief engineer; T. Pizzotto, second assistant engineer; John McKown, oiler; J. Driscoll, oiler; W. Hughes, fireman; W.
Robertson, fireman; James Atwood, seaman; H. Welber, engineer; C.
Johnson, seaman.

First Engineer Dies.
Charles Huzon, the first engineer, died from exposure.

The steamer was bound from Portland to San Francisco with a cargo of wheat. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon the vessel was steaming slowly along the coast of Oregon in a fog that hid every object from view. A heavy sea was running at the time. Suddenly with a terrific crash the South Portland ran bow on to the reef jutting out from Cape Blanco. A minute later she slid off the rocks and began to fill.

Lifeboat Capsizes.
Seeing that all hope of saving the ship was gone, the captain gave orders to lower the boats and man the life rafts.

One boat, containing the captain and seventeen men, capsized as they were getting away from the sinking steamer, and only seven of the eighteen were able to get into the boat again.

The survivors of the ill-fated steamer reached Port Orford in a pitiable condition from exposure. They have little hopes for the remainder of the passengers and crew.

List of Passengers.
Following is a partial list of the passengers who were on the wrecked steamer: Captain W. H. Weber, J.
Watson, S. Baker, J. S. Lakey, Mrs.
W. E. Tyrrell, Steerage: Al Bailey,
C. Hallenbeck, L. McKay, F. Morlange,
Paul Reinmuth, Jacob Wright.

Mrs. W. E. Tyrrell of Portland, the only woman on board, and her 12-year-old son were among the drowned.

POSTAL SCANDAL IS TAKEN UP

Leopold J. Stern Given Hearing in Satchel and Strap Case.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Leopold J.
Stern, the Baltimore contractor arrested in Toronto under two warrants charging false pretense in the supply to the government of satchels for rural delivery carriers, was given a preliminary hearing in the supreme court.
Stern pleaded not guilty. Much of the day was consumed in arguments by attorneys. Assistant District Attorney Taggart, reviewed the charges against Stern, who, he said, submitted a bill and received money for satchel straps which he never furnished. "The bill on its face," said Mr. Taggart, "was a lie. There were 1,557 satchels supplied, but they did not have the straps as stipulated in the contract."

A general invitation has been ex-

"THE TENDERFOOT" SCORES BIG HIT

Musical, Mirthful and Spectacular Production Delights Overflow Audience.

An overflow audience that filled every available seat and square foot of standing room in the Myers Grand theatre, smiled and laughed and fairly bubbled with merriment for three straight hours last evening. From the first entrance of the ascetic, sad-eyed "Tenderfoot" on his equally mournful donkey Rupert, to the last fall of the curtain there was no break in the enthusiasm. Everything and everybody was encoored and the responses were frequently more mirth-provoking than the original stage business which called them forth.

While the musical play relies largely for success on its humorous situations and the effervescent wit that pervades its lines, the spectacular features and appropriate musical score are large contributing factors.
Richard Carle, the author, stage-director, and leading comedian, has gathered about him a company of accomplished actors and excellent vocalists. In addition to this the feminine portion of the chorus is made up of, sprightly, good-looking young women and the male contin-gent is something more than a "background." The scene of the production is laid on the Mexican border of Texas and affords the opportunities of introducing a series of unique and beautiful costumes—an opportunity which is not neglected.

Cowboys and cow-girls, Mexican senoritas, Texas rangers, and Indians are all a part of the "landscape" which "Prof. Zachary Pettibone, L. L. D. B. A.?" and his "Seminary girls" invade. The first act opens with the "Washing Song" of Hop Lee, William Rock's eccentric Chinaman, and the last act with the war dance of "Big Bluff" and his band of braves.

Richard Carle and chorus were several times recalled after the singing of "My Alma Love" and "The Tortured Thomas Cat." Charles Wayne as "Sergt. Barker" made a hit with "A Gay Lothario" and his acrobatic feats. Grace Cameron as "Marion" was very pleasing both in her acting and the singing of "Only A Kiss" and "Fascinating Venus." But of all the feminine members of the cast "Patsy, the waltz," Ethel Johnson, was easily the favorite with the audience. Her part was not of the "Sis-Hopkins" order, a type which American audiences have tired, but something new and original in "the awkward girl" line. Her dancing was a feature of the play.
Edmund Stanley as "Col Paul Winthrop" pleased with his singing in a rich baritone of "Adios." Anna Conley as "Shilly," Henry Norman as "Honest John," and Agnes Paul as "Flora Jane Fibby" were excellent in their parts as well as in their rendition of the musical selections
"The Soldier's" and "Marriage is a Lottery." "The Tenderfoot" made a great hit in Jamesville and future productions of the gifted author and the composer, H. L. Hertz, will be awaited with interest.
